ARMY TO SEEK YOUNG MEN FOR MILITARY DUTY

69 Percent Of Youths Who Become 21 In Next Year To Be Conscripted

MASTER LISTS MAILED

Draftees Of Lower Ages Favored; Weight Rule Being Changed

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1—About 69 percent of all American youths now 20 years old will be conscripted for military service in late 1941, it was learned today as national draft officials speeded classification and selection of the 800,000 men to be put into khaki by next June.

The classification machinery was started when selective service headquarters airmailed to local draft boards 60,000 copies of official master lists of numbers drawn in the national draft lottery in Washington Tuesday and Wednesday. The mailing cost $2,000, since airmail cannot be franked.

First of the official master lists reached many of the local draft boards today, it was stated. The army yesterday announced that conscripts and volunteers under the draft law must meet the same rigid physical standards required for the regular army. At the same time, the war department said that in order to bring about complete standardization of physical tests it will relax the weight and height standards for men in the regular establishment. Height and weight minima for the regular army were thus reduced to five feet and 105 pounds, respectively, compared to previous minima of five feet four and 115 pounds.

Army Wants Younger Men
At the same time, it was reported that since the army had 17,000,000 men from which to choose 800,000 draftees by next June it would seek conscripts in lower age groups. The registrants subject to possible service are from 21 to 36 years of age. But the army, it was reported, wanted men from about 21 to 26. It was pointed out that men who are given a year's military training under the conscription law are liable for service for 10 (Continued on Page Four)

SHERIFF'S AIDES RUSH TO ANSWER ALARM AT BANK, BUT IT'S FALSE

A short in the wiring tripped the First National Bank burglar alarm that sounded in the sheriff's office at 10:30 a. m., Friday, and sent Deputies Earl Weaver and Robert Armstrong to answer the call.

Bank employees said they believed defective wiring had caused the alarm to go off.

BRITISH TO RECEIVE FAMOUS BOMBSIGHT, OFFICIALS DISCLOSE

Ordered Deported

RAISSA Berkman Browder, wife of Earl Browder, Communist candidate for the presidency, was ordered deported by Attorney General Robert H. Jackson on the ground she entered the U. S. illegally. He acted on recommendation of the immigration appeals board and said the finding was based on her own testimony describing her surreptitious entrance in 1933. Jackson said she is a citizen of Russia.

CHUNGKING — Hard-pressed by the Chinese army of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, Japanese troops today were reported fleeing toward the coast after hurriedly evacuating Nanning. Chinese dispatches, which described the rout as "like the retreat of the British from Dunkerque," stated that Japanese warships were standing by at Yanchow to cover the flight of the Nippon army.

LONDON — British authorities admitted today that they had received no fresh news regarding progress of the fighting in Greece other than that contained in the latest Greek communiques. They also stated they had no confirmation of a report published abroad that British planes had bombed Tirana, capital of Italian-occupied Albania.

BALBOA, C. Z.—American Canal Zone authorities and navy officials today were investigating reports that an unidentified submarine had been seen in the Gulf of Darien east of the Atlantic entrance of the Panama Canal.

ROME—A British bombing attack on the Italian port of Naples was announced officially today. Italian forces in North Africa have resumed their offensive, the high command stated.

ANKARA — President Ismet Inonu today received General Arthur Smith, chief of the British army general staff, in a long audience.

CITY OBSERVES HOLIDAY, WITHOUT MAJOR DAMAGE

Thursday night's Halloween celebration brought no arrests, Police Chief William McCrady reported Friday, as service department employees prepared to clear city streets of Halloween debris. Both cruisers and all regular officers of the force were kept on duty during the night, the police chief said, but no serious property damage was reported. Rain kept service department employees inside Friday morning although department officials reported service trucks would begin the task of clearing the streets as soon as the rain stopped.

Army's Device To Be Released; U. S. To Retain Navy's

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1—Great Britain will receive the army's crack bombsight and every other military airplane coming off American assembly lines, defense leaders reported today as the United States marshalled additional resources for the English war machine.

Less than 24 hours after President Roosevelt promised 12,000 additional airplanes for the RAF, high officials disclosed that the army is releasing its bombsight to the British government. At the same time, members of the British purchasing mission said orders have been placed for "a great many" American merchant ships and that a large additional number will be acquired over the next year.

Release of the army's bombsight has been expected for some time. This device, while better than any sight developed abroad, is still inferior to that now being used by the American navy. The sight is manufactured by the Sperry Gyroscope Company.

The navy's bomb sight will not be released to England, but all army craft will be equipped with the device.

To Adjust Program
Meanwhile, defense officials composing the aircraft priorities board expect to adjust the domestic production program to care for the additional 12,000 airplanes being sought by the British.

This additional order will bring British objectives up to 26,000 American airplanes, some of which already have been delivered. The army and navy currently are engaged in a program to augment American air might by 25,000 planes. Eventually this will be stepped up to 50,000. At present production rates, the American and British military forces are practically dividing equally all planes as they come out of the shops.

This will continue until the army's new 12,000-bombing plane program gets under way. Officials are now putting the finishing touches to this plan which calls for utilization of the automobile industry to make parts for the new bombing fleet. The cost of the bombers is estimated at $2,000,000,000.

NEW AMERICAN AIRPLANE PLAN BEING DRAFTED

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1 — A new American airplane program may be submitted to congress as soon as it resumes its working sessions President Roosevelt indicated today.

The program apparently would be within the goal set of attaining a maximum of 50,000 planes. Congress is scheduled to resume its regular sessions shortly after the election.

Discussing the national defense program at his press conference, Mr. Roosevelt said orders have now been placed totalling approximately $9,000,000,000, as against $8,000,000,000 a few weeks ago. This includes all phases of national defense and, the President pointed out, orders still remain to be placed under existing appropriations and authorizations.

The President, at the same time, said that obviously the National Defense Council would have to arrange for more plant capacity to handle American needs and British needs. That fact, he said, is kindergarten stuff—a shot apparently aimed at Wendell Willkie.

This statement came in answer to an inquiry as to whether the government was planning to build 15 or 16 new plane plants.

Ohio's Valued Electoral Votes Remain In Doubt As Nov. 5 Ballot Nears

COLUMBUS, Nov. 1—Contradictory predictions on the outcome of the election next Tuesday were spread today by Republican and Democratic leaders as their candidates prepared to wind up their campaign over the week end.

J. Freer Bittinger, chairman of the Democratic State Executive committee, forecast a majority of at least 320,000 for President Roosevelt and former Gov. Martin L. Davey in Ohio. He asserted the figure was computed on reports gathered by "special representatives."

Ed D. Schorr, Republican state chairman, still was undecided about predicting the outcome, but indicated he would do so over the week end. Republican leaders, however, asserted Wendell L. Willkie, GOP presidential nominee, and Governor Bricker would win by a majority of "anywhere from 100,000 to 350,000."

Other political observers contended it was not unlikely that President Roosevelt would win Ohio's 26 electoral votes for the third time, and that on the state ticket Governor Bricker would be elected to a second term.

Neither Side Sure

All of which boils down to the fact that neither side was any too sure just how the state's estimated 3,250,000 voters would mark their ballots.

As the campaign drew to a close, bitterness between candidates increased. Bricker and Davey both spoke in Cleveland last night in their mad race through the state.

Bricker lashed out at Davey and former Democratic state chairman Francis Poulson with the comment: "Ohio cannot afford to return an administration of political exploiters like Davey and Poulson."

"Your state government is in order—not on order. As long as you keep me in the statehouse, the state government will be operated for the benefit of the citizens of Ohio—not for the benefit of any ruthless gang of political chisellers."

Davey devoted his entire radio broadcast to a speech in which he accused Cleveland newspapers of "covering up" for Bricker while "printing everything to discredit my administration."

Throughout the campaign, Davey has been bitter about the way metropolitan newspapers allegedly have treated him in past and present campaigns. Time and again he has accused large newspapers of "sticking up" for Bricker because the state liquor department forced distillers to place large amounts of advertising with the publishers.

JESSE OWENS WANTS JOE LOUIS TO DEBATE ISSUES

COLUMBUS, Nov. 1 — Jesse Owens, Negro track star and ardent supporter of President Roosevelt for a third term, today had challenged Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis, a Wendell Willkie campaigner to debate the issues of the presidential campaign.

In a telegram to Democratic National Headquarters, Owens, back at Ohio State University to complete his college education, said:

"Have telegraphed challenge to Joe Louis to debate the issues of this campaign any time, any place—particularly the issues involving my race and the United States of America."

Louis, at his press conference in New York, declined to say whether he would accept.

Reporters expressed the belief that it would be a great debate: "the world's fastest human and the world's fastest puncher."

Gayda Claims Roosevelt Steering Nation Into European War

ROME, Nov. 1—The charge that President Roosevelt deliberately fostered war agitation against the axis powers and that the United States will join the conflict on Britain's side shortly was made today by Virginio Gayda.

Accusing the president of "deliberate war-like intentions and preparations" against the Rome-Berlin axis, Premier Mussolini's authoritative press spokesman said:

"The decision to synchronize production (between Great Britain and the United States) confesses a de facto Anglo-American armament and war alliance."

However, Gayda dwelt at some length on his charges of war-mongering.

"It is evident," he wrote, "that President Roosevelt's policy is intended to control and steer the course of the European war."

"Everything demonstrates the existence of programmatic offensive hostility and deliberate warlike preparations by Roosevelt's group against the axis."

Interference Proved
"President Roosevelt's message to Vichy threatening immediate occupation of Martinique, Guadeloupe and French Guiana in event of an agreement among France and the axis proves his intention to interfere with the free will of European countries."

OLD OHIO MILL BURNS; YOUTHS RECEIVE BLAME

GARRETTSVILLE, O., Nov. 1 —The 135-year-old Vanderslice Milling Company plant at Garretttsville was destroyed by fire early today.

Damage was estimated at $50,000 in the blaze, believed to have been started by Halloween pranksters, who were seen in the mill building before the blaze was discovered, shortly after midnight.

Firemen from nearby Ravenna and Windham were called in a vain effort to halt the fire, which destroyed thousands of bushels of grain harvested from the area to be used for the new Ravenna munitions plant.

Troops Occupy Island

Belgrade Declares Nazis Entraining Many Soldiers

BELGRADE, Nov. 1 — Reports from Bucharest that Soviet Russian forces have occupied an island in the Danube delta coincided with word today that German troop trains have been speeding eastward through Romania for the last two days.

Advices from the Romanian capital said the Russians occupied Chilia island in the Danube River delta, a maneuver whereby they have obtained virtual control of the Romanian Danube delta canal as well as Sulina.

It was understood that the Russians during the Danube River conference insisted that Germany should not occupy positions beyond Galatz, and that the Reich complied with the Soviet demand.

Destination of the German troop trains was not revealed. But they were believed bound for Moldavia, the Romanian eastern province bordering on territory recently ceded by Romania to the Soviet Union.

Other advices from Bucharest said 15 "training camps" have been established by the Germans in various parts of Romania in accordance with the German-Romanian agreement providing for instruction of the Romanian defense forces.

In addition, these reports stated, Franz Von Papen, German envoy to Turkey, arrived in Bucharest last night enroute to Berlin. Heinrich Himmler, Nazi gестапо (secret police) chief was understood to be traveling "incognito" through Romania.

NAZI BATTERIES HURL SHELLS AT BRITISH CONVOY

DOVER, Nov. 1—German "big Berthas" on the French coast today hurled more than 100 gigantic shells at a British convoy as it dashed through the Straits of Dover, but shore observers believed that none of the ships was damaged.

(Explosions of the shells could be heard over the telephone in Fleet Street, London, as the International News Service reporter at Dover called London with his story of the attack.)

The Nazi "big Berthas" apparently were firing from emplacements in the vicinity of Cape Gris Nez.

Three Nazi batteries were in action, firing six-gun salvos. Besides the batteries at Gris Nez, another near Calais and a third on the French coastal cliffs between, were firing on the British ships. Although several shells burst in the sea close by the vessels, they steamed steadily on their course westward.

DORIS DUKE MAY FILE COURT SUIT AGAINST HUBBY

NEW YORK, Nov. 1—Reports that Doris Duke Cromwell will leave for Honolulu tomorrow to begin a divorce action were neither confirmed or denied today by her husband, James H. R. Cromwell, Democratic candidate for United States senator from New Jersey.

"It's up to Mrs. Cromwell to verify or deny the information," he said. "I have nothing to say about the matter."

At Duke farm, Somerville, N. J., it was said Mrs. Cromwell would be there tonight, but further information was refused.

ATHENS, Nov. 1—Greek warplanes took the initiative along the Greco-Albanian border today, carrying out a series of sudden attacks on Italian airdromes in Albania.

Reports received in Athens stated these air assaults, a violent naval bombardment by Greek warships and fierce counter-attacks by killed Hellenic warriors had turned back the main Fascist drive against the key industrial city of Janina.

In addition to incessant bombing attacks on Italian airdromes, it was claimed, Greek planes also bombed and machine-gunned Italian troops on the march in northern Greece.

So far, these reports stated, the Italians have not used any large quantity of tanks in their drive against northern Greek defenses.

(The London Daily Telegraph reported from Athens that large quantities of arms and equipment were captured by Greek troops which staged a counter-attack on a hill north of Janina.)

(The paper said the Greeks stormed the position in the face of heavy fire and dislodged the Italians.)

Italian Lines Shelled

Advices from Corfu stated that Greek naval units in the region of that strategic island for an hour yesterday heavily shelled Italian advance positions on the Greco-Albanian border.

These reports stated there was no sign of any Italian warships or planes while the shelling was in progress.

Two Greek destroyers, stationed in the Corfu Channel, carried out the bombardment of Italian positions near the coast. It was the first action of this kind by Greek naval units since the Italo-Greek conflict began.

An official Greek communique stated that in the northwestern Greek region, Epirus, Italian operations were everywhere repulsed and that the Italian forces sustained losses. Bands of irregular troops cooperating with the Italians were captured, the communique stated.

On Wednesday, the statement said, Greek planes bombed and machine-gunned Italian contingents and shot down two planes.

Despite bad weather, it added, the Greek air force went into action yesterday and hit an Italian reconnaissance aircraft.

GERMANS AWAIT ENVOY'S STORY OF TURK PLANS

BERLIN, Nov. 1—Germany today withheld all announcement regarding future Balkan policy pending the arrival of Franz Von Papen, Nazi ambassador to Turkey, who has been summoned to Berlin to report on the attitude of the Ankara government toward the Italo-Greek war.

According to Bucharest dispatches, Von Papen left the Romanian capital by plane at 10 a. m. today. Meanwhile, government circles emphasized that relations between Germany and Greece have not been severed. This official emphasis was interpreted as meaning that Germany still hopes to see a peaceful settlement between Italy and Greece.

OHIO JUDGE RESIGNS

AKRON, Nov. 1—Common Pleas Judge Walter B. Wanamaker today announced his resignation from the bench, effective today. Wanamaker, a flying ace in the World War, is Republican candidate for congressman in the 14th Ohio district.

F. D. R. On Tour; Foe Continues Attack

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1—President Roosevelt packed his bags for the last time in the 1940 campaign today and prepared for a climactic 36-hour swing through the all-important states of New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio, which between them will cast 109 votes in the electoral college next Tuesday.

This afternoon the chief executive goes to New York City for the second time this week to follow his long-standing custom of speaking in the Brooklyn Academy of Music on the Friday night before election.

Tomorrow will find him touring upstate New York, where the Republicans normally have their strength, making rear platform speeches and personal appearance in Rochester, Batavia and Buffalo on his way to Cleveland, where, Saturday night, he will make another major address to refute the campaign charges of his G. O. P. opponent, Wendell L. Willkie. En route, Saturday afternoon, Mr. Roosevelt will speak from the rear of his train for the last time in Pennsylvania, at Erie.

Aboard Willkie Train in New Jersey, Nov. 1—The foreign policies of President Roosevelt "are leading us straight into war" and his domestic policies "are leading to complete collapse," Wendell Willkie asserted today in a statement in which he also charged Mr. Roosevelt with "making campaign material of the duties of the president of the United States."

This was a quiet day for the Republican presidential candidate with only two speeches and a radio broadcast scheduled and it started with the issuance of the statement in which Willkie chided his opponent for what he termed an attempt to claim credit for the order for 12,000 airplanes placed by Great Britain.

Willkie's statement was as follows:

"In Boston Wednesday night the third term candidate tried by inference and innuendo to get credit for certain orders which the British government has placed with our airplane manufacturers.

"I was surprised by the use, in such superficial manner, of an effort so vital to Britain and to our own safety. I cannot understand the propriety of speaking in a political speech, as if from the White House; of making campaign material of the duties of the President of United States.

"Of course, the credit that the third-term candidate would like to assume is mostly imaginary. These orders have been placed by the British government with American aircraft manufacturers who have been for the last seven years neglected by the third-term candidate, and even abused."

NEW YORK, Nov. 1—Henry A. Wallace, the Democratic candidate for vice-president, was on record today with a reiteration of his charges that Adolf Hitler desires the election of Wendell L. Willkie in the current presidential campaign.

LEE HARPER DIES

WASHINGTON C. H., Nov. 1—Lee Harper, 69, father of Robert S. Harper, city editor of the Ohio State Journal of Columbus, was dead today of a heart attack suffered while at work as a Fayette County bridge foreman. He was a former Fayette and Madison County farmer. Funeral services will be held Saturday afternoon.

velt would mean to Hitler another step forward in his plans for world conquest, Wallace told a Madison Square Garden rally held by the American Labor Party last night.

"Millions of Americans know from personal observation that there is Nazi propaganda and Nazi pressure for the election of the Republican candidate to the presidency of the United States," Wallace declared. "The organizations under Hitler's control are going to cast all the votes they can muster. The native totalitarian organizations are herding their members to vote for the man Hitler wants."

It was an "outrage," Wallace declared, that millions of Republicans "should find the Nazis marching in your parade."

"But Hitler cares nothing for your rights," he continued. "He has decided that if Roosevelt can be defeated, England would be discouraged, South America would turn away from the United States, and he would have an easier time with his somewhat delayed plans for world conquest."

'UMBRELLA MAN' NOT COMING TO U. S., HE SAYS

LONDON, Nov. 1—Reports that former Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain had left England for the United States were denied here today—by none other than Chamberlain himself.

"Reports that I have left for the United States are so ridiculous that they are scarcely worth denial," he declared. "I am in England and haven't the slightest intention of leaving."

MORE THAN 75 HURT AS TRAINS CRASH IN EAST

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 1—Between 75 and 100 persons were recovering today from injuries received when a Reading railroad electric train crashed into the rear of a steam train loaded with homebound commuters at a North Philadelphia overpass.

Hundreds of other passengers were shaken up or tossed to the floor when the two-car electric train enroute to Jenkintown telescoped the last car of four on a Bethlehem-bound steam express at Logan station. The impact, heard for miles, attracted several thousand curious.

Grumbling suburbanites were held up as long as five hours while wrecking crews cleared the tracks to permit passage of other trains. Victims were rushed to three hospitals in ambulances, and patrol wagons for injuries ranging from fractured skulls to scratches.

R. W. Brown, Reading Company vice president, blamed the engineer of the electric local for the accident. The engineer, identified as Ira Showers, 55, Philadelphia, was taken to a hospital in critical condition with a fractured skull.

Brown declared investigation showed Showers operated his train "at a high rate of speed" after stopping at an automatic warning signal 2,000 feet behind the other train, which had just pulled out of the station. He said the station was protected by the "most modern automatic signals."

DRAFT QUERIES
GO INTO MAILS
EARLY IN WEEK

Persons With Low Numbers Drawn In Lottery To Be Questioned

INFORMATION IS VITAL

Statement From Employer
Concerning Importance
Of Job Permitted

If your number was among the first thousand or so in the selective service lottery, your next contact with the draft will be receipt of an eight-page questionnaire in the mail.

Draft officials said Friday that if your number is among the very first few, you will receive this document early next week, and that later numbers will get the questionnaire later.

In any case, the questionnaire must be filled out and returned within five days after you receive it. The information contained therein will be the basis for the local board's decision as to whether you are to serve your year's training or be deferred.

In this all-important paper you are allowed to request deferment if you feel that you deserve it. The bulk of the deferments will be on the grounds of dependency, and on this score the questionnaire seeks to elicit rather detailed information.

Questions Are Many

It asks whether you are married, whether you live with your wife, how much you contributed to her or some other dependent's support in the last year, how much the dependent earned or otherwise received, how much rent you pay, how much you earned and how much you received from other sources, and how much it costs to maintain your home.

There is room in this section to list an unborn child, which the draft board has ruled will count as a dependent.

The next largest group of deferments is expected to be "occupational"—those men who are needed more in their civilian jobs than in the army. This section of the questionnaire asks just what you do and what you are able to do.

In this category you are allowed to enclose a statement from your employer as to the importance of your work, if you are seeking occupational deferment.

Physical deferments are expected to number a high percentage, but the questionnaire asks very few questions on this score, since such deferments ultimately must be ruled on by your local board's physician.

Students who wish to be deferred until the end of their school year must request it in the questionnaire.

If you are seeking deferment as a conscientious objector, you must state it on the questionnaire and you will then receive another, very detailed, questionnaire from your board.

May Be Summoned

When the local board has completed its study of your questionnaire—and perhaps has called you in for an oral examination, it must place you in one of four classes:

- 1-A—Available for immediate service. A sub-class of this category, 1-B, is for those with minor physical disabilities which makes them "available for limited service."
- 2—Deferred because of your civilian job.
- 3—Deferred because of dependencies.
- 4—Deferred because of complete physical disability, or legal reasons such as conscientious objector, ministers of religion, etc.

A police department financial report, released by Mayor William B. Cady, Friday, revealed that during 1940 the police department operated more efficiently than it has for several years.

To November, 1940 the department has received $5,967.45 and has expended $8,648.36. The difference between the amount received and the amount expended has been cut by nearly one-half over the 1936 financial figures, according to the report.

In 1939, the department received $5,539.40 and expended $10,799.93, and in 1938 it received $4,019.35 and expended $10,818.33.

Jesus Declares His Mission

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Newman Campbell
(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for November 3 is Luke 4 and 5, the Golden Text being Luke 19:10, "For the Son of Man came to seek and to save that which was lost.")

THERE ARE so many interesting stories of Christ's life on earth in this lesson that we shall hardly be able to cover them all.

First, last week we mentioned His temptation in the wilderness. We told of His days of hunger and of Satan asking Him why he did not turn the stones at his feet into bread, as He could so easily have done. Jesus' answer, you remember, was: "Man does not live by bread alone."

Then Satan took Jesus up into a high mountain and showed Him all the glory of the earth, telling Him that all that should be His if He would worship Satan. Jesus replied, "Get thee behind me, Satan." Taking Him to the top of the temple in Jerusalem, Satan then told Jesus to cast Himself down, if He really was the Son of God, for the Lord would give His angels charge over Him and would save Him. Jesus said: "It is written, thou shalt not tempt the Lord thy God." Jesus never argued with evil, you see. He denounced it.

Satan left Jesus after this, and He returned in the power of the Spirit unto Galilee. People had heard about Him by now, and He went about, teaching in the synagogues. He came to Nazareth, where He was brought up, and, as was His custom, went to the synagogue on the Sabbath. As He stood up to read, a book was handed Him, and He read from it:

"The Spirit of the Lord is upon Me, because He hath anointed Me to preach the gospel to the poor; He hath sent Me to heal the broken hearted, to preach deliverance to the captives, and recovering of sight to the blind, to set at liberty them that are bruised, to preach the acceptable year of the Lord."

Nazarenes Are Angered

He closed the book and everyone looked at Him. They wondered at His gracious words. They said among themselves, "Was not this Joseph's son?" Then He reminded them that God had not favored them especially. That He had, when a great famine had been on the land, favored a widow of the city of Sidon; that a Syrian was cured of leprosy. At that the people became so angry that they turned Him out of the temple and took Him to a hill that overlooked the city, with the intention of casting Him down. But Jesus, who had reminded them that "no prophet is accepted in his own country," calmly slipped through the crowd and went His way.

In Capernaum, a city of Galilee, he cast out a devil from a sorely afflicted man, and all wondered. In Simon Peter's house He cured Simon's wife's mother of a fever, so that she regained her strength and "ministered unto them." And so He went, healing the sick, casting out evil spirits, and even when He went into the desert to rest, multitudes followed Him.

As the people pressed upon Him to hear the word of God, Jesus saw two ships standing empty by the lake of Galilee, the fishermen being near by cleaning and mending their nets. Jesus preached to the people from the boat, and Simon entering the boat, Jesus told him to go out from land and cast his net. Simon said: "Master, we have toiled all night, and have taken nothing; nevertheless, at Thy word I will let down the net." He did so, and when he hauled it up it was so full of fish that the net broke and Simon called his partners to help him. There were enough fish to fill two boats. When Simon Peter saw this he fell on his knees before the Master, saying: "Depart from me; for I am a sinful man, O Lord." He felt that he was not worthy to associate with his Lord. Jesus answered Simon, "Fear not; from henceforth thou shalt catch men."

This was the first mention of His disciples, for when James and John, and Simon saw this miracle, they left their work and followed the Master.

Heals Man of Palsy

One day when He was preaching in a house friends brought a man afflicted with palsy. They could not get through the people with the man on his bed, so they took him on the roof and let him down, on his couch, through the tiling, and Jesus healed him. The scribes and Pharisees said among themselves that this man—meaning Jesus—blasphemed, for Jesus had told the sick man that his sins were forgiven. Only God could forgive sins, the Pharisees reasoned. But Jesus said:

"Whether it is easier, to say, Thy sins be forgiven thee; or to say, Rise up and walk?" Both deeds are impossible for man, but easy for God.

The calling of Levi (later called Matthew) was next. Levi was a publican, or tax collector, for the Romans, and hated by his own people. He gladly left his work and followed the Master. He made a great feast in his house, which was another cause of fault finding by the priests. Why should these followers of Jesus feast? John the Baptist and his followers had fasted. Moreover, Jesus and His disciples ate with publicans and sinners.

Jesus answered them that He had not come to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance. Also that there was no need to fast and be sorrowful when He was in their midst and had brought them "tidings of great joy."

Always Jesus, in His short time on earth, lovingly helped the distressed, saying His rebukes for those who oppressed others and who thought more of traditions and customs than they did of human rights. For truly, "the Son of Man came to seek and to save that which was lost."

It's Zadok Dumbkopf who thinks that maybe the reason a prophet is not without honor save in his own country is because the home folk know him too well.

ARMY TO SEEK YOUNG MEN FOR MILITARY DUTY

69 Percent Of Youths Who Become 21 In Next Year To Be Conscribed

years. Thus, if a man were trained when he was 35, he would be liable to service until he became 45 years of age, and men of 45 do not make good soldiers, army officials claimed.

The army, it was reported, would rather train men from 21 to 26 so that they would still be comparatively young if they were called up during the ensuing 10 years.

It was estimated that only five percent of the 17,000,000 men who registered October 16 would be called for military service during the next eight months, or by June, 1941.

After June, 1941, it was learned, the army probably will depend on youths coming of age for its conscripts. It was believed that all youths now 20 who become 21 years of age by next September 16 would be forced to register under the draft law shortly after that date. Another national lottery also may be held to give them order numbers.

Approximately 1,300,000 youths will become 21 by next September 16. It was estimated by draft officials that at least 85 percent of them could meet army physical requirements. The army is allowed to call up 900,000 men annually for training, and it was believed that starting next winter it would draw on the 21-year-old class for conscripts. However, only 69 percent of the coming 21-year-olds will be needed to fill the 900,000 quota.

Draft officials said that the conscription law is broad enough to allow the army to choose its own draftees, either by sending out calls for men of certain age groups or for men meeting certain physical standards.

Complaints Expected

Meantime, draft officials braced themselves for an expected avalanche of complaints believed certain to pour in once classification and selection gets fully under way.

quo of France's possessions in the Western Hemisphere.)

President Roosevelt's "group" long ago began a "deliberate offensive" against the axis, Gayda said.

"Americans close to England and France, including Roosevelt, are exclusively responsible for the ideological and political struggle which is now progressing toward war between the axis and America," he said.

Since his famous Chicago "quarantine" speech, Gayda charged, Mr. Roosevelt has been artificially creating an atmosphere favoring a heavy armament program. Since the European war broke out on September 3, 1939, Gayda said, "he has shown an implicit policy of partial intervention in favor of the Allies."

The Fascist editor accused the United States government of "discriminatory measures" against Germany and Italy.

"Surveillance measures have been applied exclusively against the axis powers at Bermuda when clippers land," he said. "The oil embargo of last July was directed against the axis, and another case is the cession to England of 50 American destroyers which previously had been prepared for action."

This amounted to an important line-up of force against Germany and Italy."

TWO GO TO COURT

Traffic Officer Miller Fissell arrested two alleged speeders Thursday evening. David Baker, 21, 1409 Franklin Avenue, Columbus, was arrested for traveling 38 miles an hour on East Main Street, and Donald J. Moss, Chillicothe, Route 4, for going 38 miles an hour at the Pickaway-Main Street intersection. Both are scheduled to appear in traffic court Saturday.

Rain and rough weather is bringing better luck to duck hunters in the community, Game Protector Clarence Francis reported Friday. One hunter Thursday was reported to have killed two mallards and two teal along the Scioto River. Hunters have also seen a few geese in the vicinity, Officer Francis said, although none has been reported killed.

Naval Units Shell Foe's Advance Positions In Frontier District

Italian positions along the border was described in a single terse sentence of the communique, which said:

"Our naval forces successfully bombarded the right wing of the enemy's front for more than an hour."

Authoritative quarters in Athens stated that in yesterday's operations along the Greco-Albanian border the Italians failed to gain a "single kilometer" of ground. In every sector, it was claimed, the Greeks counter-attacked and found it possible to "advance without difficulty."

The Italians used three main types of forces—light tanks which operated chiefly in the western coastal sector, cavalry units and Albanian irregulars.

Cavalry Forced Back

In one battle zone, it was reported, the Italian cavalry units attempted to cross a river but were hurled back with considerable losses.

Albanian irregulars, led by Italian officers, also were pushed back and a large number of them were captured.

As the Greeks threw their combined land, air and sea forces into the conflict, Greek mountain fighters, aided by heavy rains that converted narrow passes into virtual quagmires, also succeeded in halting a second Italian drive against Florina. This push was aimed chiefly at Greece's Aegean naval port of Salonika.

Seemingly halted on the ground in the North, the Italians struck back by air, raiding the Greek ports of Patras and Navpaktos and inflicting increasing casualties on residents, although military objectives suffered little damage, it was claimed.

The greatest success yet achieved by the Greeks was attained north of Janina, where they regained a hill commanding the Kalamas Valley in a fierce counter-attack, it was claimed here. Large quantities of arms and ammunition were said to have been captured from the fleeing invaders.

Bombsight Amazing

The army bombsight is said to perform with amazing accuracy from altitudes up to 25,000 feet. Competent military quarters predicted that the Royal Air Force will exact a much heavier toll of destruction in raids on Germany once its planes are equipped with the American sight. To prevent the bombsight from falling into German hands the army has perfected a system whereby any pilot can quickly and completely destroy the mechanism. To further protect the device, its component parts will be shipped across the Atlantic in separate vessels, to be assembled in Britain. Only a few engineers will be given knowledge of assembly essential to maximum performance.

Three Buckeyes Survive Slump

Eight Positions Changed As Ohio State And Indiana Meet In Big Ten Contest

By Larry Newman

COLUMBUS, Nov. 1—Only three players who started for Ohio State against Pittsburgh in the first game of the season will be in the opening lineup as the Buckeyes take on Indiana's Hoosiers in a Big Ten engagement in Ohio Stadium Saturday afternoon.

The Wildcats, the Gophers and Cayuga's waters have come and gone leaving behind wreckage and despair with only Center Claude White, Capt. Jimmy Langhurst and Don Scott able to stand the disastrous events.

More than 40,000 dyed-in-the-wool fans are expected to wend their way to the big horseshoe stadium to witness the tilt which will have little or no bearing on the Western Conference race. Ohio State has

M'PHAIL DENIES HE'S TRYING TO BUY BEE OUTFIT

NEW YORK, Nov. 1—President Larry MacPhail of the Brooklyn Dodgers today again denied reports that he was personally negotiating for the purchase of the Boston Bees.

However, he did admit having some recent conversations "about Boston," but these confabs, MacPhail insisted, were "in Bob Quinn's interest and with his knowledge and approval." Quinn is president of the Bees.

BOSTON, Nov. 1—President Bob Quinn of the Boston Bees today refused to comment on a report that Elmer Ward, Chicago sportsman, had re-opened negotiations for the purchase of the National League entry.

"All dad and I know of it is what we have been reading in the papers," John Quinn, son of the president and secretary of the ball club, said.

It was first reported that Ward sought to purchase the Bees with Bing Crosby, screen and radio star, but the deal was blocked by Judge Kenesaw M. Landis, the high commissioner of baseball, because of Crosby's horse track connections.

THE GAMES MICHIGAN LOST TO MINNESOTA AND ILLINOIS LAST YEAR WERE ONES WHEN EVASHEVSKI WAS OUT WITH INJURIES

Wildcat-Gopher Contest To Carry Title Bearing

CHICAGO, Nov. 1—A capacity crowd of 48,000 will sit in on the proceedings tomorrow afternoon at Dwyer Stadium in Evanston when Northwestern and Minnesota clash in a game that is tantamount to a play-off for the Western Conference football title.

All the victor in tomorrow's argument has to do is to defeat Michigan and that victor will take over the championship of the Big Ten. The picture is further confused because the loser must also play Michigan.

While Minnesota and Northwestern are tangling tomorrow, Michigan remains idle, but there is some indication that a few of the Wolverine athletes will be among the 48,000 at Dwyer stadium.

Northwestern's chances against Minnesota aren't regarded as too bright, since there is some certainty that Bill De Correvont, the star Wildcat ball carrier, will not be in the starting lineup. De Correvont's ankle ailment has not responded speedily to treatment.

But Coach Lynn Waldorf will have his backfield star in uniform for some service during the course of the afternoon.

The uncertainty of De Correvont as a player further handicaps the Wildcats, because the Northwestern team will be outweighed about 25 pounds to a man and there has been no intimation that the two star Gopher backs, George Frank and Bruce Smith are not in excellent health. "Red" Hahnenstein, De Correvont's alter-ego at the halfback spot, is expected to start for the Wildcats.

Win or lose, Illinois faces a breather tomorrow when Coach Bob Zupke sends his team against Wisconsin. Any way you want to look at it, the Badgers cannot be placed on the same level with Southern California, Michigan and Notre Dame, who have been Illinois' opposition for the last three weeks. However, Coach Harry Stuhldreher's Badgers can be dangerous.

Ohio State, a pre-season favorite to retain the Big Ten title, now faces the task of trying to keep out of the cellar. Indiana, the Buckeyes' foe tomorrow, last week defeated Northwestern in every department except the all-important scoring division, and is by no means a set-up for Ohio.

The Purdue-Iowa game will be anybody's contest. Coach Mal Edwards' Bollermakers have had a lot of luck this season, but it has been for the most part bad. Consequently, the Bollermakers are pretty unhappy about the whole thing from their berth in the cellar.

RED AND BLACK LOSES 40 TO 0 TO BLUE LIONS

Washington C. H. Team Plays Splendid Ball To Run Up Big Score

It was Washington C. H.'s night to go to town Thursday when the Circleville Tigers invaded the Fayette County seat and was sent home on the zero end of a 40-0 score in a South Central Ohio League game. The thumping definitely relegated the Red and Black to the cellar position in the CBL.

Washington C. H. had everything its own way. Everything that Circleville attempted went wrong; everything in the Blue Lion repertoire turned into perfection.

The Fayette team, defeated this year only by Hillsboro's Indians, next week's Red and Black opponent, scored in each period, getting a touchdown in the first period, another in the second and two more in each the third and fourth cantos.

Breaks played an important part in several of the scores, but the finger of fortune always points to the team that can take advantage of these little quirks that are the difference between a winning team and just another football team. Pass interceptions set up a couple of touchdowns, fumbles aided in others.

Durnell Goes Over
The initial score was tallied by Durnell who just got over from the fourth yard line on a smash. Joe Staley had put off the touchdown temporarily a few minutes earlier with a pass interception on the goal line, but a long return of a punt set up the score.

The second was on a pass in the second frame, Spetnagel whipping the ball over Carl Elby's head into Mann's hands deep in the end zone. The play started on the 10, but Spetnagel was back at the 20 before he fired the leather. Reno's placement was good.

The third touchdown climaxed a drive that started on the Washington 37. Durnell, Reno and Spetnagel did most of the ball toting, the latter going over from the two. Reno kicked again to make it 20-0.

Kline Turns In Run
The fourth touchdown came suddenly after Circleville received the kickoff. Kline had contributed Circleville's outstanding offensive play of the game by running the kick back to the Washington 49. Jenkins took the leather over tackle, but fumbled when he was hit. Reno grabbed the ball in the air and ran 50 yards, no hand being put on him. Reno's boot was no good.

The fourth quarter scoring was done on a pass by Mitchell over Kline's head into Mann's hands, and Mann added the point with a placement.

The final counter was another pass, Mitchell tossing one over Siegwald's head to Robinson in the end zone. Robinson's placement for the point was blocked by Geib, who broke through, but Alkire, Washington end, picked up the ball and ran over the goal to make it 40.

Beatty, crack Negro halfback, was not in the game for Washington.

Circleville's offensive never did function. It couldn't get organized for any kind of a sustained drive, the leather being in the Red and Black possession only a small part of the time. Several Circleville linemen, notably Martin, Crawford and Sabine, turned in brilliant defensive play. Other boys who participated kept plugging as hard as they could, just couldn't seem to get anywhere.

The season ends with the Hillsboro game next week.

OPEN LETTERS

TO THE VOTERS

FRIENDS: By this time your pockets are no doubt bulging with campaign cards, pencils and papers of matches from candidates from both sides, and you may be so bewildered by the contradictions set forth in political arguments from both sides that you have no idea for whom to vote. Or perhaps you are so disgusted with the pleasant smiles and handshakes and pats on the back from politicians that you are not planning to vote at all. Still it is all a part of a democratic system, and when you enter the polls Tuesday, it is not necessary that you have any one of them to do your thinking for you. It is there that you become as powerful as any, regardless of status, in building our government. It is also there that you accept in equal responsibility with every other voter in what that government shall be. In the past, a great proportion of the eligible voters in the county have not bothered to vote at all. In so doing, they have forfeited their chance to be representative of our government. Claude Kraft, clerk of the county board of elections, has estimated that nearly 2,000 more persons in the county will vote this year than in the presidential year 1936. Vital issues in this campaign make this as it should be. The essence of any free election, and the very principal on which any democratic system will survive, is not how the people vote but that they do. The election this year produces numerous questions. The presidential ticket, the state and county ballot, the judicial ticket, and special issues to be tested in the several districts are all important. Circleville councilmen say that approval of a three-mill levy for general operating purposes is imperative; Ashville is trying to obtain public funds with which to construct a municipal building; Washington and Salt-creek Township school districts are both balloting on bond issues for construction of school additions, and Darby Township has a local option question to be decided. The election promises to be an outstanding one, and all citizens are urged to visit the polling places as early as possible.

CIRCUITEER.

TO WAR VETERANS

LEGIONNAIRES: Armistice Day—November 11—should be one of our outstanding holidays, and I am proud that two of our leading organizations, American Legion and B. P. O. Elks, are joining to conduct an outstanding celebration. A parade, of course, is imperative, and since Circleville loves a parade as do few other Ohio cities of its size, the procession is certain to draw a crowd. I hope that both organizations get their committees into action at the earliest possible moment to complete plans for a great celebration. The Armistice becomes more significant as the years go by, because it ended the War to End Wars. All of us think each day about the many things that are going on overseas that threaten the peace of all hemispheres, and we realize that thought should be directed toward perpetuation of our American democracy. With organizations such as the American Legion, the Elks and other groups functioning, America has little to fear.

CIRCUITEER.

TO DRAFT BOARD MEMBERS

GENTLEMEN: When you accepted your appointment to the draft board, you no doubt took it with the understanding that you would be in for a lot of grief—and you have not been disillusioned. Since Registration Day, October 16, you have been posting lists of the county's registrants and their serial numbers. From the beginning you have had to provide your own office help, and even your own stationery and typewriters. In spite of handicaps, your board was one of the first in the state to get its lists posted throughout the county. Now, additional cards coming in necessitate supplemental lists and with the county's order numbers to be received from the state within the next few days, you will be flooded with additional work. I hope the county's registrants will be patient with you. You are doing a grand job and cooperation from the persons who signed up for service will be appreciated.

CIRCUITEER.

TO THE CONSERVATION CLUBS

BOYS AND GIRLS: You have outlined, with the help of Conservation Officer C. E. Webb, a winter program which is not only beneficial to Pickaway County's wildlife, but highly educational in itself. Conserving wildlife, not necessarily within the county, but throughout the United States, is a program which should have been started years ago when the problem was much simpler. This summer conservation officers have released nearly 2,000 pheasants in the county and have stocked a number of streams with fish. Your help in providing food and shelter for wild birds and animals and your efforts in preventing stream pollution, will go far in making the county a refuge for wildlife.

CIRCUITEER.

TO YOUTH OF DISTRICT

YOUNG MEN: I am pleased to note the interest with which most of you are considering the Selective Service lottery, and the attitude that most of you appear to be taking in regard to one year of training in Uncle Sam's army. A year of military activity would certainly do all of us some good, and I feel sure that there will be none who will shirk when the time comes to don the khaki and get to work. I note that enlistments are expected to get under way at any time, with some of the eligibles seeking to get their year of service finished as early as possible. A communication comes from the Navy Department, too, that enlistments should not be stopped just because of the draft lottery. The Navy is still taking young men for enlistment periods.

CIRCUITEER.

TO ALL

FRIENDS: A large group of Circleville and Pickaway County residents is encamped at Camp Shelby, Miss., with the National Guard outfit. I feel certain that all of the fellows in the camp would appreciate letters from home. Why don't you take a little time to drop them a few lines of news concerning activities of their friends. They'd appreciate the letters.

WORLD AT A GLANCE

Charles F. Stewart

JOSEPH H. BALL, recently appointed by Governor Harold Stassen of Minnesota to the United States senate, to complete the remaining two years of the late Senator Ernest Lundeen's term, by no means is the only newspaperman in the upper congressional chamber. He's the only one, however, to have been boosted into such exalted company directly out of an ordinary reporter's job. The others were publishers, or editors, at least, prior to enrollment in the august group at the senatorial end of the national Capitol building. Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas is dean of the aggregation. Capper knows his business from the ground up. He began as a printer, when type was set by hand. None of the rest ever actually worked at the case. Capper did. He stuck type. Then he got to be a reporter; then an editor. Now he publishes the Topeka Daily Capital and several other Kansas periodicals. Printer's ink almost literally flows in his veins. He's a cracking good senator, too.

Senator Carter Glass is an older likewise. He runs a daily double-end (that is, morning and evening editions) at Lynchburg, Va. He's been doing it for about 50 years, but I don't believe he ever had any practical experience at the mechanical end of the game.

VANDENBERG ONE OF 'EM

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg was editor and publisher of the Grand Rapids (Mich.) Herald, but he hasn't kept it up while in congress, as Senators Capper and Glass have done. Washington scribes class him as one of themselves, nevertheless. He has their viewpoint and speaks their language perfectly. It's an asset for political publicity purposes.

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge graduated into public life, as a Massachusetts solon, from editorial desks in the offices of the New York Herald-Tribune and the Boston Transcript. He's a member of the congressional press galleries and of the National Press club. The correspondents recognize him.

Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney of Wyoming was a humble reporter once on a Boulder (Colo.) paper, but, before he came to Washington, he had been editor of the Cheyenne State Leader, and a city editor, of course, and smallish potatoes in comparison with a publisher, but journalistically as good as a colonel, anyway.

Senator Gerald P. Nye was a very small town newspaperman, in we little Wisconsin and Iowa burgs and at Cooperstown, N. D. But make no mistake. These country editors are personalities in their home communities.

Senator Josiah W. Bailey of North Carolina gets into the classification in a kind of a queer way. He once ran a religious paper—the Biblical Recorder. And Senator R. R. Reynolds, also of North Carolina, originally was sub-editor of a college weekly, besides which he's written several books. Whether or not they're eligible on such grounds is problematic. They want to be so considered, though.

Newspapermen are quite numerous in the house of representatives. Notable among them is Congressman Joseph W. Martin, the lower house minority leader and manager of Wendell L. Willkie's campaign. Joe publishes the North Attleboro (Mass.) Chronicle.

DIET AND HEALTH

Meat Is No Villain in the Diet Story

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

● We were all startled a few years ago when the famous explorer Mr. Vilhjalmur Stefansson told the scientific world that he had lived in the Arctic for nine years on an exclusively meat diet and that at the end of that time his health was unimpaired, his blood pressure not raised, and that there was no evidence of injury to his kidneys. Certain New York professors of medicine refused to credit this, said it was due to the climatic conditions under which the experiment was carried out, so Mr. Stefansson agreed to put himself in their hands and stay in New York on an exclusively meat diet, which he did for two years, and the professors were honest enough to report that his original contentions were perfectly true.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Contains Proteins

These and other experiments have made all doctors feel that meat is not the base villain it was proclaimed to be, and that it could not only be admitted to the diet safely but even contributed some benefits.

Meat has been found to be of importance in the diet of young and old because of its rich store of adequate proteins. While proteins are contained in many foods, not all proteins are alike, nor do they have the same nutritional value.

Proteins build and repair body tissue. Adequate proteins are required for the maintenance of muscular tissue in adults. Children, because of the added need of proteins for growth, require more in proportion to body weight than grown-ups.

Proteins are complex substances, made up of a number of individual units technically known as amino acids, the "building blocks" of the body. About thirty such amino acids have been identified. The work of nutritional chemists has shown that ten of these thirty cannot be made in the body, or at least not in as great quantities as the body requires. These ten can be obtained only by eating the protein foods in which they are present. Without enough of these ten essential amino acids, growth is retarded and a state of poor nutrition will develop. The proteins which supply them are known as adequate proteins.

Easily Assimilated

The proteins of meat supply liberal amounts of all amino acids needed. Thus they are completely adequate proteins. Meat is easily digested, and its amino acids are promptly used by the body for growth, for the repair of the everyday wear and tear of tissue, and for the formation of important gland secretions.

These quite incontrovertible facts are the basis for the statement I made that meat even has some advantages in the diet. Vegetarians it is true get these adequate proteins from milk and eggs (if they are not total vegetarians) or from peas, beans and nuts, but not as economically from the standpoint of body nutrition or as certainly as from meat.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendening has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

SYNOPSIS

READ THIS FIRST:

AFTER a long climb from obscurity as a small-time singer and dancer, KIT Reilly rockets to the top by winning the Sombler radio contest, which gives her a one-year contract to sing on the radio as the successor to NANA HARRIS, famous songstress, who is retiring. Kit was helped in obtaining her audition for the contest by VANCE HEALEY, noted radio sports announcer. Before Kit leaves the studio after meeting officials, to go to her home, where she lives with FRANK LE MAZE, her partner and friend, Nana takes her aside to tell her of some of the problems she will face.

CHAPTER THIRTEEN

LOOKING AT Kit Reilly, Nana Harris wished that Kit had not led such a starved life. She could see what success and emotion would do to her, but she said, "Just as long as you remember that everything you do is done with the thought that your career comes first, you'll be all right. It's funny, but you can surmount all sorts of troubles. If you have a cold you may not be able to talk, but you'll find the place in your throat where a song comes from, and you'll sing!"

"I will! I will!" Kit promised. "And you'll have to learn to discipline yourself. That's the hard part. You'll have money and time for pleasures, but you can't afford the energy for them." There were other things that Nana was going to say, but she saw that she could not pierce the radiant wonder of Kit's mood, and so turned to more practical things:

"Have you thought about a manager? An agent? A coach? A press agent?"

Kit looked properly appalled. "Do I really have to have all those things?"

"You do. You can't get along without them and you won't like them, but you'll have to have them. They'll direct your whole life for you. You'll sing and study and rest and perform as the strings are manipulated for you by this staff. You see, you are now a valuable piece of public property and, as such, you'll be guarded and nourished and protected as long as your money and your talents support these guardians. You ought to have some sort of person—your mother, perhaps—who loves you and is loyal to you, to take care of you and advise you."

Kit suddenly thought of Frank—dear, wise Frank, a rough, pure diamond. Now she could do something for her!

"I have someone," she said, with eyes shining. "I have a partner who is one of the finest persons I've ever known."

"Good! I hope she's got a good money head on her shoulders, because I'd like you to be able to keep a little of what you make. It may look big to you, but you won't be able to keep much of it when you start paying salaries and expenses. That's why you'll have to have an agent to get more contracts and engagements: for you so that you can afford to be a radio star."

"It sounds like a vicious circle. I'm afraid I can't quite take it all in, Miss Harris."

"You will. But don't let me discourage you. There are a lot of thrills in store for you besides making money. Wait until you get fan mail from people who enjoy listening to you. If you're a sentimental idiot like I am, you'll get a lot of happiness out of that."

"It's making me happy just to have you talk to me like this. It makes me realize I don't know where to begin right now. What do I do next?"

Nana laughed merrily. "Where do you suppose Eve herself would have begun if there were shops and she had a nice big check in her pocketbook? Figure that out for yourself."

Visions of furs and gowns danced in Kit's head and came out in her eyes.

"Let me give you a little more practical advice."

"Please do."

"First off, get yourself a good address, but don't spend more than you have to for a good apartment. If you want any help, ring up my secretary and she'll tell you where to look for one. She'll also give you the name of my modiste and you'll get a professional discount. Dress well, because you'll have a lot of pictures to pose for. And when you want a car, don't buy one!"

Kit was so amazed she was beginning to think maybe there was a Santa Claus and she would be told to write to him.

"You can make a deal with a motor car company that will rent you one, or give it to you for a nominal cost if you pay your chauffeur's salary and nose for publicity pictures in the car. And naturally the Sombler company will send you a piano."

Kit hugged her knees and said somberly, "I don't have to stop at Cartier's and buy the crown jewels, do I? Or a baby panda or hire a butler?"

Nana shook her head. "I suppose it does sound as crazy as that, but it isn't—quite. You won't be able to afford any extravaganzas like jewels for a long time until you go over—and there is always the hazard that you might not, so hoard! Save every penny you can."

"I will," Kit promised, meaning it at the moment.

"Getting rich quick isn't always a good idea. It seems as if there is no bottom to the pile of gold. You remember how long it has been since you wanted things you couldn't afford and then you start buying pretty things, and more pretty things and first thing you know the bottom has arrived. Then there's credit, and credit means debts. It's not pleasant having to go back to being poor, and none of us knows when we may have to."

"But if a girl gets a chance like mine..."

"Singing is a risky business. And, at best in any career girl's life, there comes a day when a home and a garden and a trust fund looks more attractive to her than a sea of smiling faces across the footlights."

"But a career doesn't shut out marriage," Kit protested.

Nana shrugged her shoulders. "I wouldn't advise you not to marry, but I would advise you to put it off for a little while until you orientate. It's yourself to this new career, Kit Reilly. Marriage is a business all its own which a woman usually doesn't share well with a job like ours."

She had finished with that disclosure and drew on her gloves. "The car is waiting now."

Kit said, "Thanks more than I can tell you, Miss Harris, for telling me all this and talking to me the way you have. It's been like having someone I know help me. I've never once thought of you as the great Nana Harris."

Nana was touched and so she said gruffly, "Forget it. I'm on my way out and you're on your way up. Come along, I want to stop at the arranger's department for a moment to pick up some music. I'll meet you at the elevator."

From where she stood waiting for Nana, Kit could see a door marked: ANNOUNCEMENTS.

When Nana joined her, Kit said dreamily, "What would you do if there were a man you wanted to see and you didn't know how to go about letting him know that you wanted to see him?"

"If there were a man that I wanted to see that badly, Nana retorted, "I'd get on a boat and go to the South Seas until I got over it. But if I were you, I'd just wait. By tomorrow he'll know that you're a celebrity and he'll come rushing around like everybody else you ever knew, or I'll miss my guess."

Kit dropped her eyes and murmured something about hoping Nana was right.

Nana looked at her watch. "I'll have my car drop me at the hairdresser's and then the chauffeur'll drop you wherever you want to go."

Kit said, "That's very kind of you. I was going to take the subway."

Nana's gaze enveloped the thin coat, new and cheap, but hardly warm enough to protect her from the sharp November wind. She thought of the check in Kit's handbag. "The subway? Well, I'll be damned. You're a nice child, Kit Reilly, and I hope you'll always keep that kind of simple charm."

STARS SAY—

For Friday, November 1

GREAT achievements and opportunities are foreshown by the powerful and lively lunar transits governing this day. Important projects in connection with influential organizations, political, diplomatic, humane, educational or philanthropic seem to start off under splendid impetus for outstanding success, nevertheless there are portents of such fine prospects being undermined by sudden, wild impulsive and tricky circumstances of most devastating character. With these erratic moves eliminated and strategy used there is every hope of success.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of outstanding openings for definite success and achievements in connection with large groups centered on public objectives or advanced spiritual or humanitarian ends. This may be negated if not wholly vanquished by indulgence in impulsive, untenable, or eccentric behavior, perhaps of a startling or sensational nature. With restraint, sound and workable ideas there may be surprising benefits attended by social and personal gratifications.

A child born on this day may have great depths of character with lofty aspirations and versatile talents, but such may be subject to spurts of whimsical, queer or eccentric actions to frustrate splendid prospects.

You're Telling Me!

THE TOWN of Vichy, France, certainly owes more to Hitler than to its chamber of commerce. Before the war Vichy was known only to American importers of mineral water and multi-millionaires with bad livers.

Before the 1944 presidential campaign rolls around we hope some expert agriculturists succeed in crossing the tomato with the boomerang.

Geologists predict fairer weather for the next 65 years. Swell! What say we plan a picnic for June 15, 2004?

Probers found citizens of a mid-western city selling their votes for a quarter. In that town they must regard the epic of Valley Forge as just a two-bit melodrama.

Nazis may ban beer in Germany—headline. What's Hitler trying to do, start a counter-revolution?

A London woman is quoted as saying the Nazis bombings are a tonic. At least, they are a sure cure for that drowsy, lazy feeling.

The Greeks whipped the Italians in the first battle. We'd like to hear Signor Gayda, Mussolini's mouthpiece, try to explain that one as being just a practice contest.

One hundred and thirty-four guests gathered for the party, the delightful buffet supper being served at 6:30 p. m. Orange candles centered the small tables where the guests were seated.

Excellent entertainment was provided for the evening including card and various other games. Eight prizes were awarded in contract bridge, the lovely trophies being carried home by Mrs. James I. Smith, Sr., Mrs. Herman Hill, Mrs. Henry S. Lewis, Mrs. Allen Thornton, Herman Hill, William Gray, A. P. McCoard of Circleville and A. E. Hertzstein of Chillicothe.

The auction bridge prizes went to Miss Reba Lee and Mrs. Harley E. Colwell.

St. Paul Aid Society
Fifty-three members and visitors gathered Thursday at the home of the Rev. and Mrs. Harold Dutt of Stoutsville when the Ladies' Aid Society of the St. Paul Evangelical Church of Washington Township observed family night.

Donations for the mission box were on display, the box to be sent to the Red Bird Mission, Beverly, Ky.

The next meeting of the group will be at the home of Mrs. Boyd Stout, Washington Township.

School Party
One of the most colorful affairs of the Halloween season was the afternoon party Thursday at the High Street School. Each of the six grades participated, carrying out a program of entertainment in its own room.

Each child came masked for the afternoon session, many having made their masks in class and the originality of the children was expressed in the costumes worn for the affair.

Halloween decorations were in each room, these symbols, too, being the work of the children.

Games, stunts and entertainment typical of the season were enjoyed and appropriate refreshments served.

Miss Peggy Parks, school principal, and the other teachers including Miss Jessie Dresbach, Miss Elsie Hilyard, Miss Polly Lou Briggs, Miss Ethel M. Noggle and Miss Nelle Roberts, assisted the children in arranging the party.

U. B. Ladies' Aid
The Ladies' Aid Society of the United Brethren Church met Thursday at the community house with Mrs. W. B. Cady in charge.

Mrs. Charles Richardson read the scripture lesson from Psalm 19 and Mrs. A. N. Gruesser offered prayer.

During the business meeting, Mrs. Cady reported concerning the Pumpkin Show food work and thanked those assisting. It was

CHESTERFIELD WINTER SERIES SHOWS APPEAL

"Give the readers what they like," appears to be the basis of Chesterfield Cigarettes' newest advertising series appearing in newspapers throughout America beginning this week. Famous personalities and colorful events carry out the plan in each of the new advertisements which features the theme, "Chesterfield gives smokers what they like."

Leading the parade is an advertisement based on a one-in-a-million family—featuring famed sports writer Grantland Rice and his daughter Florence, rising star of stage and screen. Bette Davis makes another glamorous "Chesterfield appearance," and Ellen Drew of the screen, chosen "Miss Veteran of Foreign Wars" for 1940, is charming in her military costume. Another advertisement stars the United States Marines—"at ease."

The Christmas advertisement introduces the new Chesterfield holiday package—one of the most brilliant of a long line of beautiful Christmas cartoons designed for the famous cigarette. The "Chesterfield Girl" wears a special ski outfit designed by Merry Hull.

The new Professor Quiz radio program, sponsored by another famous Liggett & Myers product, Velvet Pipe and Cigarette Tobacco, is now being broadcast on Columbia Broadcasting System stations every Tuesday evening at 9:30 p. m. EST. This was the original question-and-answer program, and for four years has held its place among radio's most popular offerings. Contestants appear from all parts of the United States, and additional prizes are awarded each week for the best lists of questions received.

Fred Waring's, "Pleasure Time," broadcast five nights weekly on National Broadcasting Company stations, and Glenn Miller's, "Moonlight Serenade," on the Columbia network continue their Chesterfield successes.

RELIGIOUS SERVICES TO BE CONDUCTED AT CAMP

CAMP SHELBY, Miss. Nov. 1—Religious services for the 37th Ohio Division is as much a part of the camp schedule as is the drilling of troops.

Each Sunday 18 services are held in the area and on Saturdays, confessions are heard. The nine regimental bands assist with appropriate music.

The Rev. William P. O'Connor, Dayton, is senior chaplain. Others are the Reverends J. N. King, Dayton, assistant senior chaplain; J. J. Kucia, Cleveland; Joel M. Wareing, Toledo; Clifford Chadwick, Kenneth C. Wilson, Arthur H. Froehle, Ferdinand Evans, all of Cincinnati; Frederick C. F. Randolph, Lancaster; J. E. Marshall, Mansfield; John J. Tineman, Lakewood and Frederick Kirker, Lebanon.

It is estimated 16,000,000 thunderstorms occur each year. But the brave human race cannot be intimidated. We continue to plan and hold picnics.

C. OF C. TO AIR NEED FOR SPEED IN DEFENSE JOB

COLUMBUS, Nov. 1.—Speeding up industry in order to finish the job of national defense as soon as possible with the least disturbance to the normal economy is the present problem of business, George B. Chandler, Executive Vice President of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce, said today in announcing the completed program of the organization's annual meeting at Cincinnati, November 7 and 8. The discussion of this problem with a view to its solution will be the theme of convention speakers who are authorities on defense, industry, finance and government.

Coordinated planning and intelligent policy must be considered if there is to be a well-rounded defense program, Mr. Chandler said. He pointed out however, that production and productive capacity for developing armament and munitions are the fundamental needs of a national defense plan. Consequently, industry has to be stepped up to a maximum capacity to provide for the emergency as well as for normal needs, he said.

"This requires expansion, new equipment and the training of thousands of workers in skilled and semi-skilled occupations," Mr. Chandler stated. "Naturally, a tremendous number of problems arise and these must be met at once."

In conformity with the convention theme, "Ohio Business Mobilizes for American Defense," Rear Admiral Clark H. Woodward, U. S. N., Commandant, Brooklyn Navy Yard; Dr. Paul F. Cadman, economist for The American Bankers Association, and Governor John W. Bricker will deliver addresses at the annual banquet the evening of November 7.

FARM WORKER HAS RIGHTS
TWIN FALLS, Ida.—A transient farm worker has a right to wash his feet in peace in a canal, Robert Lewis claims in a $50 damage suit filed in court at Jerome, Ida. Lewis is suing John Doe Sutter, Jerome farmer, because he claims Sutter's negligence disturbed his foot ablutions. The transient stopped under a bridge, put his feet into the cooling waters of a canal, then grabbed a wire to pull himself to a standing position. The wire was electrified—Lewis suffered a burned hand and a wrenched back.

SENATOR RUSSELL CALLS WILLKIE 'GREAT POLITICAL ACROBAT'

1,100 IN CROWD AT DEMOCRATIC PARTY MEETING

Richard Russell, Georgia Solon, Defends F. D.'s Good Will Policy

EQUAL RIGHTS CITED

Party One Outstanding Hope For Continued Peace, Audience Hears

Before an audience of 1,100 assembled at Memorial Hall Thursday night for the final rally of the Democratic campaign, Senator Richard Russell, of Georgia, called on the Democratic party to keep America free and at peace.

"America today is the last free citadel in the world," the senator exclaimed, as he pointed to his party as the "one outstanding hope" for peace in the future.

He labeled the present administration as one which had "brought equal rights to all and special privileges to none" and then proceeded to blast away at Wendell Willkie's "inconsistencies" in the Republican candidate's campaign for the presidential election.

Calling the Republican president nominee "one of the greatest political acrobats in the history of the country" for his alleged shift on political issues, he accused the Republican candidate of undertaking to instill in the American people a feeling of fear that President Roosevelt was leading the United States into war.

Good Will Cited

The senator from the South denied that such was the intention of the administration, as he pointed to the good will between the Pan-American countries and the United States as a strong defense measure for this Hemisphere. Willkie's election would bring about a break between these countries and the United States, he charged.

Denouncing Willkie's stand on conscription as one of the "Willkie inconsistencies" he charged Willkie with opposing the industrial amendment to the conscription bill and quoted Willkie as saying the bill giving the government the power to conscript industry was a direct effort to "sovietize" American industry.

The senator paused and then passed on to Willkie's stand on labor, maintaining that the C. I. O. had always favored the New Deal, and that John L. Lewis had "sold his great organization down the river" when he had announced his preference to Willkie.

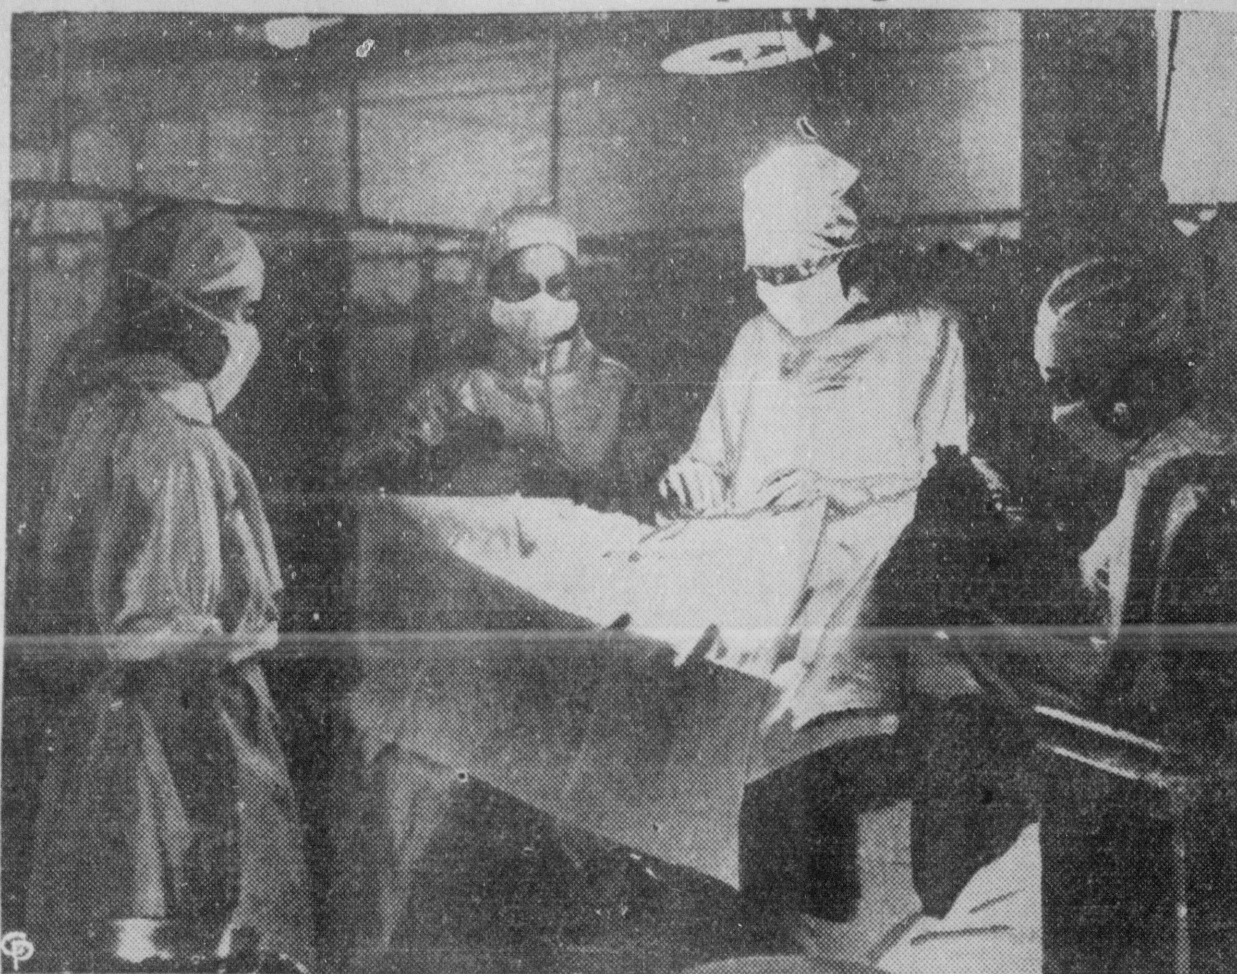

Returning to the question of American defense, Senator Russell, a member of the Senate Naval Affairs Committee, stated that America had the finest fleet on the seas, and denied Republican charges that our naval defenses were inadequate.

Concluding, he exclaimed that the American people had not forgotten the efforts of President Roosevelt to make democracy work and added that the peace and safety of the country lie in the President's reelection.

Goes To Akron

Senator Russell, a member of the Senate in 1932 and 1936, and former governor of Georgia, arrived in Circleville Thursday night at 8 o'clock with Chairman Carl C. Leist, who had gone to Columbus to meet him. Senator Russell will go to Akron, Friday, where he

FLAMES FATAL TO GIRL PLAYING WITH MATCHES

COLUMBUS, Nov. 1.—Burns received when her dress caught fire as she was playing with matches today had caused the death of three-year-old Patricia Ann Simmons, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Simmons.

The girl struck a match while playing in the front room of her home on October 23. When she attempted to throw it away, it fell on her dress. Her parents suffered burns on the hands as they wrapped the child in a blanket to extinguish the flames.

will speak before a Democratic rally.

Wilder, candidate for clerk of courts; Florence Campbell, county recorder; Robert Colville, county treasurer; George Gerhardt, county prosecutor; Charles Radcliff, sheriff; Meeker Terwilliger, Common Pleas Judge, and Henry McCrady, county surveyor-elect. ROSS COUNTY'S STEPS TAKEN TO FIFTEENTH CASE OF POLIO LISTED

CHILLICOTHE, Nov. 1.—Ross County's fifteenth case of infantile paralysis appeared Thursday when John Jacobs, ten-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Jacobs, Twin Township, was quarantined.

Attending physicians report the child's right leg is paralyzed. There are five other active cases of the disease in Ross County.

COLUMBUS, Nov. 1.—Dr. H. L. Mitchell, Franklin County health commissioner reported two new cases Thursday as Jimmie L. Right, 7, of Edgewater Park, southeast of Columbus, and Lawrence Weaver, 7, of 1029 William Road, became ill and were placed in isolation at University Hospital. They are reported to be in good condition.

First case of the year appeared in Hancock County Thursday, state health officers reported, leaving only 16 of Ohio's 88 counties free from the disease this year.

The adjutant general said that the 250 commissions probably would be awarded to national guard officers who were physically disqualified for federal service. Members will be required to drill one and one-half hours each week.

COLUMBUS, Nov. 1.—First steps were taken today to organize a home guard of 3,000 uniformed officers and men to serve while the Ohio National Guard is on a year's federal duty at Camp Shelby, Miss.

Adj. Gen. Gilson D. Light said the home guard, similar to the home defense forces of World War Days, would be established by January 1. A measure authorizing such a body was passed recently by Congress and approved by President Roosevelt.

Offers of service from rifle clubs and civic organizations and bids for commissions with the volunteers poured into Light's office. The home guard will be divided into seven battalions. Both officers and men will serve without pay.

Three-year enlistments will be accepted from men between the ages of 18 and 45, Light said. Uniforms and other equipment will be furnished by the federal war department. Units will be organized in cities where the state owns armories.

The adjutant general said that the 250 commissions probably would be awarded to national guard officers who were physically disqualified for federal service. Members will be required to drill one and one-half hours each week.

Meanwhile, as head of the state selective service, Light said questionnaires were being mailed to local draft boards so that they might in turn mail them to prospective draftees. Registrants whose numbers were drawn early in the national lottery will receive questionnaires first.

ROY WEED NEW SAFETY DIRECTOR IN COLUMBUS

COLUMBUS, Nov. 1.—Roy B. Weed, today became safety director of Columbus, succeeding Lt. Col. George M. Ward, who is on duty with the Ohio National Guard at Camp Shelby, Miss.

William V. Crowe, who had been executive secretary of Mayor Floyd Green since January 1, exchanged places with George Sinclair, secretary of the Safety department. It was reported the change was occasioned by friction between the Mayor and Crowe.

REICH MOVING PLANE FORCES?

Britain Believes Big Part Of Aircraft Taken To New Locations

LONDON, Nov. 1.—Two large squadrons of German warplanes, which endeavored to cross the English southeast coast at 20,000 feet, were driven back today by a terrific barrage of anti-aircraft fire. The Nazi attempt to pierce the coastal defenses represented the only major aerial activity over the British Isles today and led to the belief that a large number of German bombers stationed in France have been transferred elsewhere.

Shortly before noon a new air raid alarm sounded in London, the city's 292nd of the war. There was no immediate activity in the region of the capital.

An Air Ministry communique told of a further decrease in Nazi air activity throughout the country during the night, and said that a few bombs dropped on London, East Anglia and a midlands town had caused but little damage.

It added that a few bombs also were dropped "with little effect on one point on the northeast coast of Scotland."

The regular nightly air raid alarm sounded in London early in the evening, but little action developed and the all-clear signal sounded early in the night.

After an absence of some six hours the raiders returned to the capital early in the morning causing a new alarm, which continued until after dawn. During this period the drone of a few planes was heard, along with occasional bomb explosions and light anti-aircraft fire.

Belief was expressed that removal of large forces of German bombers from bases in France and Italy and Romania was responsible for the decreasing violence of the night attacks on England.

BERLIN, Nov. 1.—A huge concrete ammunition dump in southern England was blown up when German Stuka dive-bombers carried out a surprise attack, the Nazi high command claimed today.

A nearby ammunition train caught fire when direct bomb hits exploded the powder deposit, a communique reported. The secret dump reportedly was located by means of photographs taken by Nazi reconnaissance planes.

The 3,669-ton British merchant ship Kingsland was sunk, and another steamer badly damaged in a bombing attack on a convoy in the north channel last Wednesday, it was disclosed today.

FIRE HITS PRODUCTION OF PLANES FOR ARMY

TROY, Nov. 1.—Army training plane production was interrupted today as workmen cleared debris from a $10,000 fire which swept the Waco Aircraft Co. plant at Troy. There was no indication of sabotage, officials said, blaming the blaze on spontaneous combustion in a pile of oily rags in the paint room.

TEACHERS MOVE AGAINST SOCIAL SECURITY ACT

COLUMBUS, Nov. 1.—Officials of the state Teachers' Retirement Fund today advanced three reasons why they were opposed to the proposed new Wagner Bill pending in Congress, which would place all public employees, including teachers, under the Federal Social Security Act.

George M. Pogue, assistant secretary of the retirement board, listed the objections as follows:

1. — Pensions would be much smaller than under the present state system.

2. — Teachers could not be retired until they had reached 65.

3. — Under the present system, a teacher has savings he may withdraw if he quits or loses his job, but under the social security act he must wait until he is 65 to draw benefits.

Secretary W. E. Kershner charged that the federal bureau was more interested in expanding its jurisdiction than it was in spreading benefits. He pointed out that under the federal system, even a teacher with children could draw only $85 monthly at 65, while under the present system he may draw as high as $150 a month at 60.
